

Amartya Lahiri: Biographical Sketch

Amartya Lahiri is the Royal Bank Research Professor in the Vancouver School of Economics at the University of British Columbia (UBC). Before moving to UBC in 2005, Lahiri worked at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and at UCLA. He was also the Director of CAFRAL, a research think-tank promoted by the Reserve Bank of India, during 2017-2019.

Lahiri's research interests span the areas of macroeconomics, international economics and development economics. His work has been published widely in leading general interest and field journals in economics.