

Kenneth D. West: Biographical Sketch

Kenneth West is the John D. MacArthur and Ragnar Frisch Professor of Economics, and Director of the Julie Plant Grainger Institute for Economic Research, at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He received a B.A. in Economics and Mathematics from Wesleyan University in 1973 and a Ph.D. in Economics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1983. He taught at Princeton University from 1983 to 1988 before coming to the University of Wisconsin in 1988. He has held Visiting Scholar positions at several central banks and at several branches of the U.S. Federal Reserve System. He is currently co-editor of the Journal of Money, Credit and Banking and previously served as co-editor of the American Economic Review. He has published influential and widely cited papers in the fields of macroeconomics, finance, international economics and econometrics. Honors include the John M. Stauffer National Fellowship in Public Policy at the Hoover Institution, Alfred P. Sloan Research Fellowship, Fellow of the Econometric Society, Houblon Norman Senior Fellowship at the Bank of England, Fellow of the Journal of Econometrics, Wim Duisenberg Research Fellowship at the European Central Bank, and Abe Fellowship.